

© Hisao Suzuki

Fountain in Solkan

Trg Jožeta Srebrni?a
5250 Solkan, Slowenien

ARCHITEKTUR
Sadar Vuga arhitekti
Jurij Sadar
Boštjan Vuga
Ton?ek Žižek
Milan Tomac
Marjan Poboljšaj
Mirjam Mili?

BAUHERRSCHAFT
Local community Solkan

TRAGWERKSPLANUNG
Vojko Kilar

FERTIGSTELLUNG
2001

SAMMLUNG
Architekturarchiv Slowenien

PUBLIKATIONSDATUM
26. Februar 2006

The fountain was erected to celebrate the one thousandth anniversary of Solkan, a town by the So?a River, close to the Slovene-Italian border. The motif of the river, winding between the mountains towards the sea, was transposed to the fountain in a most innovative way: just like the river, the water in the fountain winds between the stones. The fountain's form resembles more a modern sculpture, marked by the water which reflects the light, running in ever-changing forms and adding to the composition the background sound of rippling water. The realisation was difficult technologically, since the concrete shell is clad with three dimensional changing stone slabs. Traditionally, fountains on town squares were intended for water supply; here the authors managed to find a new solution to an old theme.

© Sabina Penšek

© Sabina Penšek

© Sabina Penšek

Fountain in Solkan

DATENBLATT

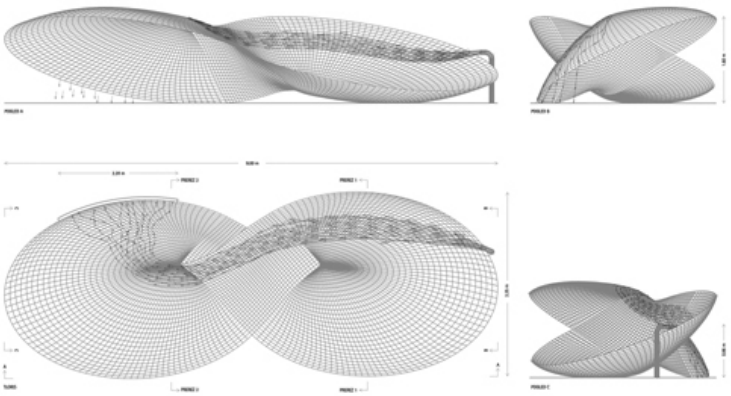
Architektur: Sadar Vuga arhitekti, Jurij Sadar, Boštjan Vuga, Ton?ek Žižek, Milan Tomac, Marjan Poboljšaj, Mirjam Mili?
Bauherrschaft: Local community Solkan
Tragwerksplanung: Vojko Kilar
Fotografie: Hisao Suzuki

Maßnahme: Neubau
Funktion: Parkanlagen und Platzgestaltung

Fertigstellung: 2001

Baukosten: 250.000,- EUR

© Sabina Penšek



jpg

Fountain in Solkan

competition drawing